How long we keep information

If you do not become a client then any information is discarded after two years.

If you do become a client, then information is retained for the later of either (a) 6 years from your last interaction with us or (b) 7 years from 31st January following a tax year for which we have provided tax advice.

The reason for this retention period is so that we can assist you with any enquiry or review by HM Revenue & Customs in relation tax advice we have provided to you.

So, for example, if we give you tax advice on the 2024/25 tax year during that tax year then we would retain your information for 7 years from 31/01/2026 – i.e. 31/01/2033. Once a case is closed, your information is archived from our main records and is only available to select staff for this type of review on a reactive basis.
